Agnès Paquet created her estate in 2000 from a plot acquired by her parents in the 1950s and then rented out. The vineyard extends over 13 ha on the Côte de Beaune and the Hautes Côtes de Beaune. Very attentive to respecting our terroir, they are implementing a vine culture that we describe as relatively classic. After years of trial and error in organic farming, they decided to take the plunge in 2019 and enter into Ecocert certification. Manual work in the vineyards is essential. The harvest is done all by hand. They let the native yeasts do their work and have reduced the inputs to the strict minimum.

After having known Gradoli and its vineyards as a student of the Faculty of Agriculture at the University of Tuscia in Viterbo, Andrea made it the subject of his degree thesis, in 2004 I started this extraordinary journey. Born on the north-western shores of Lake Bolsena, in the Gradoli area at around 450m above sea level, the Occhipinti Agricultural Company takes advantage of the happy pedo-climatic condition characterized by the presence of the largest volcanic lake in Europe. His objective is to preserve and enhance the characteristics of the native Gradoli vines, the Aleatico, the Grechetto Rosso and the Procanico, through the mass selection of the vines most suited to the volcanic nature of the soil, scrupulous methods with which the grapes, at the right degree of maturation, they are harvested and transported, and special care is taken in the winemaking and conservation phases, where the flavor of tradition and the effervescence of innovation blend perfectly.

AUSONIA

AUSONIA

AZIENDA AGRICOLA

OFFICIAL EXPORTER AND DISTRIBUTOR

Ausonia is the name of a butterfly species that uniquely lives in the plot of land where the winery lies. It is quite rare to see this type of lepidoptera in other areas of Italy, that is why it became the icon of the winemaking philosophy of Simone and Francesca. The vineyards of Ausonia take root on clay, limestone soil; they benefit from the protection of Gran Sasso massif and they are deeply influenced by the Adriatic sea and the biodiversity of the natural reserve Calanchi di Atri. The agriculture practice follows the principles of biodynamic and the native grapes evolve in sincere wines that are a strong representation of the territory and its people.

Bakkanali is an innovative winery on Mount Amiata (Tuscany), founded by Sebastian Nasello (former winemaker at Podere Le Ripi) and Ugo Fabbri. The name, a tribute to the Roman "Baccanali" inspired by convivial evenings and tastings. The project was born from their desire to find a mountainous, volcanic terroir that could guarantee the future of quality viticulture, considering rising global temperatures. The vineyards are located in Seggiano in the Poggio Ferro area, an area rich in ferrous soils, galestro, and pietraforte. The two partners have chosen to apply the principles of biodynamic agriculture. Their approach in the cellar is minimally interventionist, with spontaneous fermentations and the use of containers such as amphorae or used wood, to maximize the freshness, volcanic character and identity of the fruit, mainly Sangiovese and high-altitude exposure.

BERNARD BONIN

Mersault. Côte du Beaune. France

OFFICIAL EXPORTER AND DISTRIBUTOR

Domaine Bernard-Bonin is a boutique producer located in Burgundy's Côte de Beaune, in the commune of Meursault. The estate is celebrated for its fresh, complex, terroir-expressive, mineral-rich wines made exclusively from old-vine Chardonnay through organic and biodynamic methods. Minimalistic winemaking methods enhance the natural approach in the vineyard, resulting in wines that articulate a distinct sense of place. Run by husband-and-wife vintner team, Nicolas Bernard and Véronique Bonin since 1998, the house cultivates nine hectares of vineyards acquired from family holdings. The refined, vibrant character of Domaine Bernard-Bonin's wines and its limited production make its catalog highly regarded and widely sought after by enophiles and collectors worldwide.

Fabrizio Borgogno and Stefano Carbone are best friends and two key figures in the Langhe wine culture. The duo also owns one of the absolute best restaurants in the Langhe, More & Macine in La Morra, a pub where the area's most brilliant producers meet to share their opinions on wine. Fabrizio and Stefano's Langhe Nebbiolo is the direct result of their innovative drive and is an explosion of red fruit that eases the transition from late summer to autumn. When Fabrizio and Stefano had the brilliant idea of making wine together, everything came naturally because Fabrizio's family has owned vineyards in the area for generations. The family vineyard is made from 30-year-old trunks in Verduno, which we classify as one of the best villages in Barolo. The entire operation is managed by Fabrizio and Stefano with their families, and the hard work in the vineyard is done entirely by hand.

The history of Bressan has been handed down for generations, since 1726. The winemaking process follows a natural line in which the philosophy of not forcing the transformation phases leaves the wild yeasts, naturally present on the grapes, with the task of spontaneous fermentation which always favors "typicality", absolutely not tolerating external interventions and manipulations. The task of a winemaker is reduced "only" to being that of "patiently following the wine in its personal transformation path as in a mosaic in which pieces are added every day to improve the whole: it depends on sensitivity and consummate experience of far-sighted master winemakers accompany it in its refinement, with specific times and methods, to lead it to the magical moment of tasting". The Bressan family expertly combine the ancient science of oenology with methods prior to modern technology, in the wake of respect for a very long tradition that categorically rejects that modernity that flattens everything.

7th generation of a line of winemakers started at the end of the 19th century, Sébastien embodies renewal, a bio-nature generation, with the help of Émeline. Twenty years later, the vineyard thrives on the soil of a viticulture committed "au naturel". And it is in perfect complementarity that the duo intervenes on the entire production process, Sébastien in the vineyards, Emeline in the vinifications. The idea is to work with common sense in respect of the living, to adapt to the surrounding natural ecosystem, to offer consumers healthy, natural, and fun products. Sébastien cultivates his vines in a permanent quest for balance between grape varieties, soil, climate, biodiversity and bans all treatment. He mechanically works the soil and the harvest is manual. Thanks to this solid, respectful, and sustainable partnership, they produce wines that mark the origin of a mosaic of local terroirs; cheerful, sincere wines, with a racy, lively, natural character.

In 2018 Giulia and Giorgio put aside our previous lives as archaeologist and art historian and bought a farmhouse in the hills with an annex that we transformed into a winery. They try to use only natural techniques in the vineyards, from biodynamics to Masanobu Fukuoka's agricultural method, that allow us to intervene as little as possible. The aim is to obtain a fruit of highest quality. Then the work continues in the winery by subtraction, with the intention of interfering as little as possible year after year. To improve biodiversity in the vineyard they grass and manually sow plant essences. As treatments they use only very low doses of copper, sulphur and propolis. All the grapes are hand-picked. Fermentation takes place spontaneously on its own indigenous yeasts, without temperature control and avoiding the use of oenological aids. The wines do not undergo any stabilisation processes, nor filtrations or cleavings, and (they) are bottled and labelled by hand. In the vineyard and cellar, processes respect the lunar cycles as much as possible.

CASCINA LIETO

Cascina Lieto

Castiglione Tinella. Piedmont. Northern Italy.

OFFICIAL EXPORTER AND DISTRIBUTOR

MALAYSIA

Cascina Lieto was born in 2018 from an idea by Rie and Hiroto Sasaki, in Castiglione Tinella. Hiroto has a long history in the world of wine. He has lived in Italy since 1997, in Rome until 2016, then in Piedmont. As his first job, he dealt with the export of artisanal wines and gastronomic products to Japan. With his wife Rie they purchased a small vineyard over 55 years old with an adjoining farmhouse to renovate. Production is around 4000 bottles per year. The manifesto of the project is maximum commitment and continuous research to do better. It's all about feeling. From the grape harvest, Hiroto waits for the seed to be ripe, crunchy, brown, to harvest perfectly ripe grapes but with excellent acidity. In the cellar, fermentations go slowly. Everything macerates and boils slowly. You don't do analyses, you taste.

The Château dates back to the 13th century and was originally a fortified house on the boundary to the French Empire and then the French kingdom. Over the centuries it became an agricultural holding. This beautiful residence was then purchased by Benoît's parents in 1990. In 2002, just after graduating from the Beaune viticultural college, Benoît's dream came true when he created an estate in the south of Ardèche. He was convinced of the terroir's potential with its scorching sun and cool nights, wild landscapes and limestone soils rich with aromas of scrubland, humus and truffle. Benoît and his wife Florence use organic and biodynamic methods in order to protect the environment and allow the terroir to fully express itself. They seek to breathe life into the soils and the vines and strive to produce increasingly pure wines.

The estate was created in 1946 by the will of our elders, winegrowers of Chavot-Courcourt. Chavost is the ancestral name of the village, which formerly was located between the Saint-Martin Church and the Mount Felix hill, upon which a castle was established. Their ancestors have given us their strong collective values, solidarity, sharing, and the love of our lands. Now more than ever, they put all our forces in common to grow high quality grapes, giving us the chance to elaborate unique wines of Champagne. The 5 hectares vineyard is organic since the harvest 2023. Their commitment in preserving the environment, our land and the excellence of their wines, is expanding along with a deep conviction. In harmony with our philosophy and values, they decided to produce and launch a new range of wines : thanks to a mastered vinification, that does not include added sulfites, the range « Et sans sulfites ajoutés ! » (meaning « No added sulphites ! »), is composed of a singular and atypical wines. It comes in addition to the traditional range.

Cherubini azienda agricola is located beyond the borders of eastern Franciacorta immersed in a natural park in the Brescia hills a few km from the city centre. In this valley there is a terroir of millenary formation with aquifers underground and rocks rich in limestone with a clayey substrate. These characteristics of the soil combined with a constant light breeze and temperature variations give the wines minerality and acidity typical of the production terroir. They are not used conventional agricultural tools such as weedkillers or synthetic pesticides but nature's paths are followed. The agricultural and winemaking philosophy is designed to intervene as little as possible both in vineyard than in the cellar, hence the choice to produce classic Zero Dosage methods with only refinements in concrete tanks and sometimes barriques which guarantee products with the maximum expression of the territory of origin.

Laissez-faire, as the French say: "Leave everything to the play of natural forces. No rigid order, no fixed rules, no dogma." This is the dogma followed by the legendary Christian Tschida during winemaking. His family has been producing wine for four generations in Burgenland, Austria and Christian is the worthy and current heir after taking over the 10 hectare vineyard when he was 27 years old and knowing only that he had to change the traditional concept and create something free without techniques complicated. Christian believes that excellent wine begins with healthy soil, in fact his vineyards boast rich plant and animal life, a tribute to his natural approach. The wines are left to develop completely and without intervention in barrels where they are said to reach their internal balance.

A few kilometers from the Italian border, in the small village of Gorjansko in the Slovenian Karst, Branko & Vasja founded the Cotar company in 1974 and in 1990 they bottled the first wines. On this sweet and bitter land, the typical varieties of the area are grown, with the utmost respect for nature: Refosco, Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, Malvasia Istriana, Sauvignon, Vitovska. In an area characterized by the Mornik winds, which blow from the sea, by the Bora, which blows from the north and by a red earth, brought back by the karst depressions (sinkholes), the land is cultivated according to biodynamic agriculture practices. Branko and Vasja's fingerprints on the labels: a signature guaranteeing the quality of the two lines produced. The highlights are the Vitovska and the Malvazija Istirana, in which all the aromas and flavors of the red Karst earth are found. They are all unique and charismatic wines, which only a land like this is capable of offering.

At Azienda Agricola Foradori, a fourth generation of vigneroni are working to grow plants that maintain their natural expressivity. Located in Mezzolombardo (Trento) in the heart of Campo Rotaliano surrounded by the Dolomites, the estate was built in 1901 and has been carried on by the Foradori family from 1939. Since then we have been working to valorize the ancient local variety Teroldego, and from 2002 we have implanted biodynamic agriculture. It was Elisabetta Foradori and Rainer Zierock's work that led to the conservation and regeneration of the Teroldego grape genetics through the cultivation of the grape's original genotypes. Today their children Emilio, Theo and Myrtha Zierock continue in their footsteps in running the estate. Aside from wine our focus is also in cultivating vegetables and breeding Tyrolean Grey cattle for cheese production. "As guardians of the land we believe our work is measured with time, with nature's rhythms, with the anticipation for the plants to grow, to age, to give fruit, for the wine's slow evolution in the silence and darkness of the winery".

Franz Strohmeier has been producing wine in Steiermark since 1996. A lot of time, patience and dedication were indispensable to extract that uniqueness that each grape carries. For long time misunderstood for his natural approach in the vineyard and in the cellar, now he is a well known and appreciated wine producer in the natural wine scene. His sparklings are so fun and special, the 'Trauben Liebe & Zeit' wines are unique and complex, with zero sulfites added. Each one of them has exceptional flavours, long finish and deep aromas. Franz's wines can be kept open for weeks and new flavours will develop throughout time.

JOHANNES ZILLINGER

Velm-Götzendorf. Weinviertel. Austria.

OFFICIAL EXPORTER AND DISTRIBUTOR

MALAYSIA

Born in 1980, Johannes Zillinger joined the family business in 2000, bringing with him a philosophy based on a biodynamic and sustainable approach: not only organic since 1984, but Demeter certified since 2013. The estate, located in Velm-Götzendorf in the Weinviertel region, cultivates 20 hectares and produces around 90,000 bottles per year. Every element of production is geared towards circular agriculture: self-produced compost, medicinal herbs grown in the vineyards to create habitats for beneficial organisms and as a basis for natural extracts, trees and hedges to regulate the microclimate. The vineyards are a complex ecosystem, enriched by sheep, chickens and Kune Kune pigs which contribute to soil fertility and biodiversity. Winemaking techniques include spontaneous fermentation in amphorae, intercellular fermentation, sulphite-free ageing and the solera method, for pure, expressive and long-lived wines.

The story began in 1984 when Flavio Basilicata decided to purchase land in the area together with his wife Silvana Forte: Le Due Terre. The couple immediately oriented themselves towards a predominantly red production, in contrast to the consolidated white movement of Friuli, embracing a vision based on environmental sustainability and minimal oenological interventionism. Today they are supported by their daughter Cora. The vines grow on clayey and marly soils and are grown completely excluding the use of herbicides, pesticides, fertilizers and other synthetic chemicals. The vinifications are carried out in stainless steel tanks or concrete vats, with the fermentations being entrusted only to indigenous yeasts and accompanied by prolonged macerations on the skins, even for the whites. Throughout the entire process, the use of winemaking aids and additives is excluded, as is the use of clarification operations, with maximum respect for the identity of the terroir. Production is very limited and expresses the care and love that Flavio, Silvana and Cora invest daily in their business.

Maxime Crotet is a young and passionate winemaker originally from Burgundy. His career in the wine world began with a decade of experience at Frédéric Cossard in Saint-Romain, where he learned organic viticulture and natural winemaking techniques. In 2021, he embarked on his own journey, founding a winery in Beaune, dedicated to the production of natural wines. Having no vineyards of his own, Maxime selects grapes from organic and biodynamic winemakers from various French regions. The winemaking process is carried out without the use of chemical additives, selected yeasts, or added sulfites, respecting natural winemaking practices. Maxime Crotet's production philosophy is based on respect for the environment and the valorization of local traditions, producing wines that authentically express the terroir and the vintage.

Podere Le Ripi is a renowned biodynamic winery located in Montalcino, founded in 1984 by Francesco Illy (of the famous coffee dynasty). Born as a life project and a love of nature, the estate began its winemaking adventure in 1999, converting to biodynamics in 2011. The estate extends across approximately 31 hectares of vineyards spread across the slopes of Montalcino. The estate is internationally renowned for its extreme and sustainable viticulture methods. Among these, the Bonsai Vineyard stands out, with 62,500 vines per hectare, holding the record for the densest vineyard in the world, and its "alberello" (bush-trained) vines. Today, the estate produces renowned Tuscan wines—including the Brunello di Montalcino Lupi e Sirene and Cielo d'Ulisse—following the principles of gentle viticulture, which excludes the use of chemicals and is geared towards the maximum expression of the terroir.

The Austrian entrepreneur Karl Egger and his family have been visitors to region of Tuscany for decades. They fell in love with small corner, just outside the medieval town of Radda in Chianti between the cities of Siena and Florence. Consequently the winery "Tenuta Carleone di Castiglioni" is located in the heart of the Chianti region. The whole property, which covers an area of approximately 100 hectares, comprises of wooded hills, small rivers and fertile plains. Nestled in between there are around 30 ha of mainly Sangiovese vineyards and some olive trees, some of them older than 60 years. The winery Tenuta di Carleone was born in 2012. Sean O'Callaghan, to his friends "IL GUERCIO" (one eyed rascal!), was asked to join and help to build a small artisanal winery making classically defined Sangiovese with a twist. Sean's twist.. Organic and biodynamic principles are implemented in the vineyard. Nothing is added to the wines, the grappa or the olive oil. No yeast and no fining agents are used.

Tenuta Fornace is the result of the dream of Andrea Rossi and his family, who were already growing grapes in Oltrepo' at the beginning of the 19th century Pavese, where the cultivation of vines has thousand-year-old origins. The project is to be able to produce each variety and therefore to place and breed each vine in the place most suited to it. Tenuta Fornace today has an area of over 80 hectares which we cultivate with passion in full respect of the balance of nature. From the beginning we chose to manage our vineyards by reducing interventions to a minimum and following what are now the rules dictated by the regulations for organic and biodynamic agriculture, even before these were established. All the wines they produce tell a story. The history of the land where the grapes grow, that of the people who take care of their vineyards and of those who expertly supervise the musts during fermentation and long refinements.

TENUTA LACA'

Tenuta Fornace

The aspiration is to combine ancient knowledge and contemporary practices. The family mood evolved with the arrival of a new practice: biodynamics championed by Jean-Philippe. After the quality of its Champagnes, the very essence of the Waris-Larmandier family is its sense of relationships: singular, faithful and genuine with its public. It's a pleasure to meet them. Let yourself be carried away by the expression of their wines. You will then understand their particularities: respect for values, the resonance of the soils, the whisper of juices, the expression of tastes and the affirmation of the pleasures that are yours.

WABI-SABI

Niederosterreich. Wachau. Austria.

OFFICIAL EXPORTER AND DISTRIBUTOR

MALAYSIA

The Japanese concept of Wabi-Sabi celebrates the beauty of imperfection. Applied to wine, it inspires a low-intervention philosophy that values authenticity and character, far removed from industrial standards. Born from a desire to explore natural winemaking, Franz Hofstätter's project combines targeted and conscious techniques, such as pruning and natural fermentation, to create authentic and stable wines. Wabi-Sabi adopts sustainable methods, reducing copper and sulfur in favor of protective microorganisms, addressing everyday challenges. Black label wines are produced in-house, unfiltered, and aged in oak, while white label wines, the result of collaborations, combine freshness and complexity with blends of varieties and vintages. Like a used but vibrant guitar, Wabi-Sabi wines reflect the spirituality of their terroir.

Grandparents on both sides of their family were already involved in viticulture, but only for their own use and out of love for the vine. Zavec brothers started viticulture professionally in 1995, when their father and mother rented the first vineyards in Vareja and in Dravinjski vrh. Over the years until today, they have gradually increased the area of vineyards and replanted vineyards so that today in four different locations, also Gorca and Podlehnik, they cultivate vineyards planted with eight different varieties, global and local varieties which are typical for the Styrian-Slovenian wine-growing region. The goal is to create wines for those who want to get to know Haloze, a unique region for wine production. Today, a new generation, work vineyard sustainably, good for nature and make hands off, terroir driven wines.

VAIRA AURELJ

Vergne. Piedmont. Northern Italy.

OFFICIAL EXPORTER AND DISTRIBUTOR

MALAYSIA

Francesco and Giacomo inherited their passion for vines and wine from their father, who passed away more than 20 years ago. They wanted to honour him by using his name, "Aurelio", and opting for the local dialect; they spelt it "Aurelj". Their few hectares of micro-plots have a southeast and southwest exposure and are located in the Barolo DOCG area, while others lie just outside at an altitude of 450 metres above sea level. All grapes are hand-picked, and any fruit that is not perfect gets eliminated in the vineyard. The two brothers are dedicated to ethical and sustainable vineyard practices and see their wines as the direct expression of the work done in the vineyard. Compromise is not part of their vocabulary; they have a precise idea of what they aim to achieve and constantly search for quality in each of the production phases.
